

China-Workshop “Iserlohn 2016”

Call for Papers

The “Iserlohn Network” is a loose circle of young social scientists working on China. Our annual workshop will be held 30 January – 31 January 2016 at Haus Villigst near the town of Schwerte.

The lead topic of Iserlohn 2016 will be

“Challenges in doing research in and on contemporary China”

As always, contributions on other topics are welcome as well!

The workshop provides a forum for young researchers who would like to present and discuss their PhD theses or post-doctoral and other kinds of research in a casual environment with other social scientists who are doing research on China.

Registration deadline is 20 October 2015. To do so, please email the registration form including the topic of your presentation and a short abstract to laura.gruss@gmail.com. We will send our invitations to the workshop at the latest 13 November 2015. Binding registration will be until 4 December 2015. We also ask that you please submit a paper of no more than 5 pages by 4 January 2016. Talks will be twenty minutes long and will be followed by a ten-minute discussion.

As in previous years the fees will be relatively low if we can interest a large enough number of participants.

We will be happy to answer any remaining questions!
